

Diversity Visiting Student Plastic Surgery Sub-Internship Program

Program Description

The Diversity Visiting Student Plastic Surgery SubInternship Program is funded by the Division of Plastic Surgery at both the Cornell and Columbia campuses. The program invites 4th year medical students with a diverse background to perform a Sub-Internship at both campuses.

- Students will be assigned to a plastic surgery service at both Weill Cornell Medicine and Columbia University Irving Medical Center, participating in all aspects of patient care in the operating room, in the hospital, and in clinic.
- Students will attend all educational conferences with the house staff.
- Students will be assigned to a resident mentor and have the opportunity to meet one-on-one with the Plastic Surgery Residency Program leadership.
- 4-week rotation, offered May - November.

Who Should Apply?

This program is open to applicants who belong to groups that are recognized as historically underrepresented in surgery or otherwise underrepresented from a social, economic, or educational perspective.

Application Requirements

Please submit one letters of recommendation, CV, and brief personal statement to LeShawn Taylor and Dr. Leslie Cohen. All applicants must also apply via VSAS. Students must meet the requirements of Weill Cornell Medical College.

Apply Today!

- Applications accepted from March 1st - July 1st as rolling acceptances
- $1,500 stipend
- Please submit application materials and any questions to:

LeShawn Taylor, Lrt9001@med.cornell.edu and cc Dr. Leslie Cohen, lec9030@med.cornell.edu